U.S. Navy photos by JO1 (SW) Trice Denny

"Background!" yells the director. As the command is given, Sailors from Naval Air Station and Naval Branch Medical Clinic Key West move through an establishing scene being filmed for the Disney movie, "The Pacifier." The scene was shot July 23 at the Lower Keys Medical Center, which was made up to look like the "C. W. Nimitz Naval Hospital." In a base-wide casting call, 29 Sailors were selected to be extras in the movie and shot scenes outside the hospital and inside with the film's star, Vin Diesel. See page 8 for more photographs.

The mightiest of defenses

A friend passed on the following story to me so, I share it with the same good intentions:

After living a decent life my time on earth came to an end.

CHAP'S RAP

NAS Key West
Command Chaplain

Lt. Cmdr.
Carla S. Cherry

The first thing I remember is sitting on a bench in the waiting room of what I thought to be a courthouse. The doors opened and I was instructed to come in and have a seat by the defense table. As I looked around I saw the prosecutor. He was a villainous looking gent who snarled as he stared at me, he definitely was the most evil person I have ever seen. I sat down and looked to my left and there sat my lawyer, a kind and gentle looking man whose appearance seemed very familiar to me.

The corner door flew open and there appeared the judge in flowing robes. He commanded an awesome presence as He moved across the room and I could not take my eyes off of Him. As He took His seat behind the bench He said, "Let us now begin."

The prosecutor rose and said, "My name is Satan and I am here to show you why this man belongs in Hell." He proceeded to tell lies that I had told things that I had done in the past; I had stolen things, and cheated others.

Satan told of other horrible perversions that were once in my life and the more he spoke the further down in my seat I sank. I was so embarrassed that I could not look at anyone, even my own lawyer, as the devil told of sins that even I had completely forgotten about.

As upset as I was at Satan for telling all of these things about me, I was equally upset at my representative who sat there silently not offering any form of defense at all. I know I had been guilty of those things, but I had done some good in my life—couldn't that at least equal out part of the harm I have done.

Satan finished with a fury and said, "This man belongs in Hell, he is guilty of all that I have charged and there is not a person who can prove otherwise. Justice will finally be served this day."

When it was my turn, my lawyer first asked if He might come forward. As He got up and started walking I was able to see Him now in His full splendor and majesty. Now I realized why He seemed so familiar, this was Jesus representing my Lord, my Savior and me. He stopped at the bench and softly said to the judge "Hi Dad"

And then He turned to address the court. "Satan was correct in saying that this man has sinned, I will not deny any of these allegations. And yes the wages of sin is death and this man deserves to be punished."

Jesus then took a deep breath and turned to His Father with out stretched hands and proclaimed, "However, I died on the cross so that this person might have eternal life as he has accepted me as his Savior, so he is mine." My Lord continued with, "His name is written in the book of life and no one can snatch him from me. Satan still does not understand yet, this man is not to be given justice but rather mercy."

As Jesus sat down, He quietly paused, looked at His Father and replied, "There is nothing else that needs to be done, I've done it all."

The judge lifted His mighty hand and slammed the gavel down and the following words bellowed from His lips, "This man is free—the penalty for him has already been paid in full, case is dismissed."

As my Lord led me away I could hear Satan ranting and raving, "I won't give up! I'll win the next one!" I asked Jesus as He gave me instructions where to go next, "Have you ever lost a case?" Christ lovingly smiled and said, "Everyone who has come to me and asked me to represent them has received the same verdict as you, Paid in Full."

It is a blessing to have an advocate who is will to represent the worst offenders and demonstrate acts of mercy. When I heard this story it changed my life in many ways. Sometimes you just find God when and where you least expect Him!

God is just a call away!

The Early Transition Program Q&A

Opening thoughts on the Fiscal Year 2004 (FY04) Early Transition Program (ETP)?

As you know, Navy is working hard to get down to our by-law End Strength requirement of 373,800 personnel by Sept. 30. We started the fiscal year on Oct. 1, at 382,235 personnel, so we had to come down by 8,435 folks. But remember, we also recruited about 41,000 Sailors during this fiscal year, so we had to lose a like number of Sailors PLUS an additional 8,435. Currently, we are at 375,700, so we are within 1,900 Sailors of our End Strength number. But we are also in the "summer surge months", where many of those newly recruited Sailors are pouring into RTC, and new Ensigns are being commissioned. So it was critical to add a tool to our Force Shaping Toolbox, in the form of ETP. That will help us drive to the basket and hit the mark.

What is the reference for the FY04 ETP?

NAVADMIN 151/04

We had been hearing about this program for months...why did it take so long to get a NAVADMIN on the street?

It is always critical to be 100 percent certain that there is a genuine need for a Force Shaping Program before you launch it. We have been observing the End Strength numbers throughout the fiscal year - it recently became apparent we would need a bit of help in the last couple of months of the fiscal year to more precisely strike the target.

How many personnel do you expect to take advantage of ETP?

We expect between 200-300 Sailors to apply for and be approved to separate under ETP. That is less than the approximately 560 who were approved for last year's ETP only because of the much shorter time frame.

The NAVADMIN states that all separations must occur by Sept. 15. Why not Sept. 30, which is the actual end of the fiscal year?

In a perfect world, the moment you turned your CAC ID card in at PSD and walked out the gate, an electronic digital End Strength counter would decrement by one person. But the reality of personnel accounting is there is a "lag" of days or even weeks before a person actually registers as a loss to the accounting system. Our IT systems are not robust enough to capture each loss in real time. So, we built in 2 weeks of "lag time" to be able to see the person leave our rolls prior to the end of the fiscal year.

When you state Sept. 15, does that mean the Sailor has to be on terminal (separation) leave by that date?

NO! The actual separation transaction must have occurred on or before that date. Sailors seeking terminal leave must ensure their chain-of-command factors that into their planning before approving their request.

The NAVADMIN discusses personnel on Stop-Loss. Can you talk about that?

To put everyone's mind at ease, there currently is no Stop-Loss in effect. Nor is one being discussed. But as we continue to fight the Global War On Terrorism, we felt it prudent to build that bit of insurance into the program. It is important to note that, even if you have an approved ETP message back from PERS-48, should a Stop-Loss go into effect for your skill, rating, or NEC, we will cancel your early separation and require you to remain on active duty.

I am under PCS orders for my remaining 12 months in the Navy, and want to use ETP

instead of executing them, am I able to?

Only if your detailer is willing and able to cancel them (depending on alternative fill for the billet you are going into)...otherwise you must execute them as scheduled. The key is to contact your detailer as to the possibility of using ETP.

My CO recommended disapproval on my 1306/7 and said he/she was NOT going to forward it to NPC, is that legal?

YES. NAVADMIN 151/04 specifically states that if a CO is unable to support a request, they are not to forward it to NPC. CO has bottom-line disapproval authority - we don't want to add to a command's admin burden by requiring them to forward requests which we will also disapprove.

My CO recommended YES on my request, and it was till disapproved by NPC. Why is that?

In cases where a command must put conditions on the 1306/7 (i.e. "...only able to support 3-month gap"), we will disapprove the request, since we can't be certain of meeting that relief date. The intent of the FY04 ETP is to separate Sailors who the command can afford to lose, without relief, out to their normal EAOS or PRD.

I received an enlistment bonus when I joined, and the NAVADMIN said it will be recouped. Why is that?

Title 10 (which is Public Law) requires recoupment of the "unearned portion" of any enlistment bonus...this is NOT waivable. When we say unearned portion, that means recoupment of a pro-rated amount. For example, if you joined for 4 years and then added a 5th year to your contract get a $3,000 Enlistment Bonus, if you are seeking a full 12-month early out, Navy will recoup $3,000. If getting out 3 months early of that additional year, we would recoup one-fourth of the $3,000, or $750. On the other hand, let's say you only joined for 4 years, and were offered $3,000 for that enlistment (no extra time), but simply shipped out in a certain month. If you are seeking to get out 12 months early from that 4 year hitch, Navy would recoup only $750. If seeking 6 months early out, recoup would be $375. It is important to check with disbursing as to the total amount of money being recouped.

Is ETP aimed at encouraging Sailors to separate?

Not at all. We want every good Sailor to stay, but realize that is unrealistic. Many of our finest come in with the firm, fixed intent to do one enlistment, achieve some personal goal, perhaps earn money for college, get some technical training and experience, and then move on to other challenges. ETP is aimed to help those Sailors achieve those goals by allowing them to take advantage of an emerging job opportunity or perhaps get started on college a whole year sooner than they thought. This is a win-win for both the Sailor and the Service.

I received my approval message for early separation, and now want to stay. Can I change my mind?

Absolutely!!! This is an entirely voluntary program. As we experienced last year, at the last moment, a small hand full of Sailors may decide there is something they want to remain on active duty for after all. In those cases, we cancelled their early-separation approval, and allowed them to continue active service.

I have an approved ETP date and am a first-term Sailor, must I still be applied for Perform To Serve (PTS)?

Yes. Even though you have been approved for separation under ETP, we ask that all CCC's keep a Sailor's PTS application active until such time as separation occurs. As stated above, at the last moment, some folks may change their mind and ask to stay. So, you want to make sure that PTS is able to render them a decision if they do change their mind. Since their intent is to separate, simply ensure their PTS application reflects that intent. But do not remove their application from the system until such time as they leave the Navy.

I am in an SRB-eligible NEC, can I still apply?

The NAVADMIN states that waivers of the eligibility criteria will be considered on a case-by-case basis, and with strong justi-

Get it done the right way

BY JAMES BROOKS

NAS Key West Public Affairs Officer

There's an old saying that goes, "If you want something done right, do it yourself." This might not always apply to complex home projects but when it comes to projects like painting, carpeting, and other less complicated projects, doing it yourself may mean getting it done sooner rather than later.

Naval Air Station Key West's Public Works Office spearheads the Self Help program here. Given Public Works Department's long list of mission essential projects, limited resources and manpower, cosmetic and lesser priority projects can be delayed. The Self Help program may be a better way to get maintenance, repair, alteration and even new construction done without delay.

The Self Help program uses local military or civilian manpower not normally assigned to property maintenance to perform real property repair, maintenance, alterations and in some cases, construction. Self-help projects are provided technical expertise and supervision by skilled Seabees and civilian experts from Public Works. When you start a self-help project, technical advice is only a phone call away. A trained eye will also monitor self-help projects as part of the overall program.

Unlike home improvement projects or work you might do on your car, it's not just a matter of rolling up shirtsleeves and diving into the job. Tenant commands and department heads who elect the self help route to get work done quicker must contact Public Works before starting their project.

Public Works will take care of all the paperwork to initiate work requests. It's important that Public Works is brought into the self help project early to ensure the job gets done right the first time.

There are important considerations such as safety, environ-

Why we love Key West...

Feb.1984—Crewmembers from the Coast Guard Cutter Evergreen (WMEC-295) go out on deck with baseball bats to remove the heavy ice accumulated during a February fisheries patrol. The stability of the ship was greatly hindered by the top-side weight as the cutter plowed through 25 foot stormy seas to tow a disabled fishing vessel adrift off Georges Bank, Massachusetts (February, 1984) Cutter Evergreen, homeported in New London, CT was well suited to the icy conditions. The cutter was the Coast Guard's only oceanographic vessel. In the early 1980's, the 180 foot cutter shifted from oceanographic research (designation WAGO) to medium endurance cutter (WMEC). The "Cutter Evergone" had an impressive history, not only conducting law enforcement, search and rescue and fisheries patrols but also making numerous trips to support the International Ice Patrol. The cutter also had the distinction of seizing the largest amount of Marijuana in the State of Connecticut's history. In 1984, Cutter Evergreen seized over 29 tons of marijuana aboard a fishing vessel bound for Mystic, Connecticut.

The Navy Reserve – Overhauling our culture

BY FLTCM(SW/AW)
"BUCK" HEFFERNAN

What is your attitude about the Navy Reserve? Is it positive? Have you had good experiences with Reservists? Have you ever worked side by side with a Reservist to help you accomplish a mission? All across the fleet I have encountered people who have a less-than-healthy respect for our Navy Reserve. And that, Shipmates, is something that we are going to change. It won't be easy, but it's extremely necessary.

When I talk with people about Active-Reserve Integration (ARI), there is a common misconception. Many people think the brunt of the work to integrate lies with the Reserve. I'm often told Reservists need to do more to help us. The finger pointing from active duty always seems to be at the Reserve.

I guess I can understand why they say that because our culture in the past has been to look upon the Reserve as a totally detached, separate entity. We had our work on active duty and the Reserves had their own work. We need to change. We need to see our Reserve as part of our team. We need to make them an integral part of our workforce. We need to see them as Shipmates, capable of helping us when we need help.

I'd like to share with you something the Chief of Naval Reserve, Vice Admiral John Cotton, said about a month ago while addressing a question about the greatest challenge to integration. He said in Proceedings Magazine, "It's the culture - the culture of the past, the culture of the present, and trying to build the culture of the future. We have a lot of baggage in the Navy. 'Reservist' is kind of a two-letter word, which is to say there's always something in front of the word 'Reservist.' The challenge is to change that perception."

That statement is telling because the majority of the fleet has been predisposed to ignore our Reserve. Why we ignored them is evident. Active duty didn't understand how to get Reserve help, and Reservists didn't know how to get their active duty counterparts to gainfully employ them. That disconnect led to two separate Navy components. Today, we're working to eliminate that gap and the 'us' and 'them' culture. There are no longer Navy Reserve requirements - there are only Navy requirements.

For the first time in our Navy's history, active duty commands will determine the work of our Reserve force.

So here's how this is going to work. As of now (and in many cases this has already happened) all Reserve units are aligning with active duty commands. For the first time in our Navy's history, active duty commands will determine the work of our Reserve force. What's more, active duty commanders are now responsible for the training, employment and success of their Reserve units. What this does is shift ownership from the Reserve to the active duty commands. By doing that, we make ownership mandatory. No longer can an active duty command ignore its Reserve unit.

By holding active duty officers and Sailors accountable for the success of their Reserve units, we expect every command that has a Reserve component to

see RESERVES page 7

Reserves

aggressively look for ways to provide meaningful employment. This shouldn't be that difficult since it was the active duty component that spelled out the need for their Reserve component during the zero-based review. The only difficult part is breaking down some of the communication barriers that used to prevent success.

On the deck plates, I encourage all Sailors to start thinking about how you could employ the Reservists assigned to your unit. If you serve in a command that has a Reserve unit, everyone in your command needs to work closely with your Reservists to ensure they are fully trained to do your jobs. That's easier said than done. The best way to accomplish this is by ensuring each Reservist has an active duty counterpart who establishes some two-way communication throughout the month.

Many still think Reserve units only drill on the weekends and are never available to help when you need them. I'm happy to say that is not necessarily the case. More and more Reservists are flex-drilling - meaning they often drill for four or six days straight with their active duty command so they are on station long enough to accomplish real training and provide real help. Each Reservist has a life outside the Navy and the flexibility they have for such flex drills varies. One thing is for sure, if you don't talk with your Reservists, you will never get them and they will never know you need them.

Shipmates, Active-Reserve Integration is not a vision, it's a reality. More and more I am learning of Reservists serving side by side with active duty Sailors and no one can tell the difference. That's the goal. As the Navy gets smaller we NEED our Reserve. The challenge for all of us is to figure out what are limits are, and then employ our Reserve in a manner than expands our accomplishments. Good luck and see you around the fleet!

Shooting Stars

"The Pacifier," whose opening scenes were shot in Key West, is the story of a Navy S.E.A.L. (Diesel) who is handed a new assignment: Protect five kids from enemies of their recently deceased father — a government scientist whose top-secret experiment remains in the kids' house. The tough Navy S.E.A.L. learns the intricacies of childcare and housework, and becomes a father figure along the way. The Sailor extras learned a lot about moviemaking that day. "It was fun, but with lots of hours of down time," said Lt. Bryan Blankenship, NLMOD officer in charge. Blankenship played a visitor to the hospital ward where Diesel was filming and was a stand-in for diesel's costar, Chris Potter. "Most memorable about the day was meeting the crew and stars and seeing how a movie scene is set up and filmed."

fication. Let's say you are in an SRB-eligible NEC, but also are not operationally suitable (unable to go to any type of operational duty) due to a chronic medical condition. That would constitute a good reason where we may consider approving you for separation under ETP. As always, the stronger the justification, the better your chance of approval.

Is there any chance of an FY05 ETP?

That is being reviewed on a continual basis. We are examining the possible End Strength requirements across the entire

Future Year Defense Plan (FYDP). In FY05, we may need to reduce our End Strength by an additional 7,900 personnel. In order to get a running start at that number, we may continue the ETP into FY05. No decision has been made on that matter. Once a decision has been made, we will then send out a NAVADMIN discussing the continuation of the program

Final thoughts on ETP?

Navy intends on continuing to shape the force for the challenges that lay ahead. We will get smaller, smarter and ever more lethal in the future. The ETP is simply one method of helping us achieve that aim. But there is no imperative that any CO submit a Sailor for ETP if it in anyway impacts mission readiness of the command. The CO and the chain-of-command are in the best position to determine the operational risk of allowing a Sailor to leave early. We appreciate all of your assistance as we work to achieve the ideal force size of the future.
